

A FARMER ON ROAD QUESTION

SAYS THE ROAD AGITATORS DO NOT PAY THE ROAD TAXES.

The Farmers Want Better Roads But at Same Time Desire Lower Taxes.

There has been a great cry for years past for good roads, and it is what we would all like to see if we could get them without any one being imposed upon. We are told by some that it would be such a great benefit to the farmer that he would then be able to haul larger loads of grain to market, etc.

Now what benefit would that be to the farmer when it costs him 80 cts. per bushel to raise wheat and is compelled to sell it at from 65 to 70 cts. per bushel. No matter if he could haul 500 bushels at a load he still would be from 50 to 75 dollars out of pocket and besides a number of farmers in this community are feeding their wheat to the hogs and chickens finding that it pays better than selling it at the present price. What the farmer needs is lower taxes and better prices and rest assured he will get his grain to market and not grumble.

An incident which told its own story happened recently when a party of men were clamoring for good roads, an old man was standing by who said nothing until after each one of the party had given their opinion strongly in favor of a compulsory road law, when he made it his business to find out how much road tax was paid by the party to whom he had been listening. Then lo and behold, one was a semi-millionaire and had an automobile, another was a saw mill man with several traction engines and a number of teams constantly on the road, another was a dude and had a bicycle and another was a well to do man with a rubber tire buggy, and not one dollar of road tax was paid by the whole party. These are the parties who make the most ado about having good roads, the ones who do not have any road tax to pay.

Further, why is it that nearly all the bills that have been gotten up in the Legislature are by men who never did a day's work on the road in their lives, and consequently know as little about making roads as a Jersey bull knows about keeping a holiday.

Pure White Lead is the Natural Paint Pigment

Numerous compounds are being offered to take the place of white lead as a paint, but no real substitute for it has yet been found. Pure White Lead has a peculiar property of amalgamating with the wood upon which it is used—added to this it has an elasticity which permits the paint to follow the natural expansion and contraction of the wood. Pure White Lead alone fulfills all the requirements of the ideal paint.

Lewis Pure White Lead

is White Lead with its full natural tenacity and elasticity unimpaired by adulterants. Every keg of Lewis' Dutch Boy brand mark, which is a positive guarantee of absolutely Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease, and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

LAST USE OF ARMOR.

It Was In 1799 and Was a Picturesque and Diabolical Scene.

In January, 1799, at the town of Aquila, in the Abruzzo, then held by a garrison of 400 French troops, the peasants broke into the town, and, though they were driven out by the French, they continued to give serious trouble. They even drove the French into the fort and made ready to bombard them with heavy guns. The French were in an awkward position.

Boulet, the officer of artillery, ransacking his brains for the means of sending out men to spike the guns on the walls under the fire of the insurgents from the neighboring houses, suddenly remembered that he had seen in his magazine some suits of plate armor, and he proposed to try whether, protected by them, men could not sail out and work in security under the musketry fire. He got together twelve complete suits and dressed out twelve gunners and grenadiers thus, selecting big men, be it remarked. At a certain hour the garrison lined the covered way, and from thence and from the fort opened a steady fire of musketry and of artillery on the lines of the insurgents.

Then out marched the twelve knights of the eighteenth century, much in David's state of mind when he complained he had not proved his armor. The men carried handspikes, hammers and spikes. Moving naturally slowly and awkwardly in their heavy steel mail, still they succeeded in completing their work under a hail of bullets from the insurgents. The scene is described, as we can well believe, to have been most remarkable and to have had something picturesque and also diabolical about it.

As the mailed figures moved in silence among the guns, their handspikes looking like maces, their silence and the slowness of their actions seemed unnatural under the steady hail of bullets. The insurgents were believed to have thought hell itself had sent forth these extraordinary antagonists, ghosts of a past age, while the French on the ramparts, true to their nature, the first moment of anxiety over, burst into roars of laughter.—Phipps' "Marshals of Napoleon."

Not Thirsty.

Jane, the bright new maid, always anxious to please, had been intrusted with the care of a little aquarium, in which the goldfish had always thrived very well until Jane came on the scene. The first day she arrived she gave them fresh water, as instructed, and then left them to their own devices. But, alas, one morning the little fishes were found floating feebly on their backs. "Jane," called the anxious mistress, regarding her pets with concern, "have you given the fish any fresh water lately?" "No, ma'am. Bless their little hearts, they haven't drunk the water I gave them last month yet!"

They Wouldn't Lay.

A beautiful young woman from a backwoods county in Virginia went into a local store carrying three chickens. She inquired the price of chickens and at the same time put them on the counter.

"Will they lay there?" asked the clerk, who did not know that the old and honest bird was a hen.

"No, sir," they are roosters,"—Lippincott's.

A Bond of Sympathy.

While the new maid tidied the room the busy woman kept on writing.

"To you make that all out of your own head?" asked Jane.

"Yes," said the busy woman.

"My," said Jane admiringly. "You must have brains."

"Brains!" sighed the woman dependently. "Oh, Jane, I haven't an ounce of brains."

For a moment Jane regarded her with sincere commiseration.

"Oh, well," she said presently, "don't mind what I say. I ain't very smart myself."—New York Press.

EASTER-TIDE.

Ring out ye bells! at Easter-tide
Ring sweetly through the sky.
Proclaim to all the world below
A Saviour reigns on high.

He that on darkest Calvary
Was nailed upon the tree,
And by his sacrificial death
He brought redemption free.

Oh ring ye bells in joyful notes
Till hill and vale resound
And tell the tidings far and near Wherever man is found—
That Christ is risen from the tomb
And reigns with God above,
He intercedes before the throne
For pardon, peace and love.

Then bring your offerings on this day
Your risen Saviour greet,
In lowly adoration place—
Your trophies at his feet!

Oh, laud and magnify His name.
With joyful sweet accord,
For He who died, that we might live,
Is Christ, your King and Lord.
—Nina Grace Wolford.

This issue of our paper presents the advertisement of the Municipal & Corporation Securities Company of Pittsburgh, who handle only high-class investment bonds; no stocks. Their business is the buying and selling of School, Borough, City and Public Service Corporation Bonds. They have a paid up Capital of $200,000, and their principal offices are in Pittsburgh, Bank for Savings Building. Their branch offices are in Drexel Building, Philadelphia; 17 Water Street, Boston, Mass.; D. S. Morgan Building, Buffalo, N. Y.; 350 West Main Street, Louisville, Ky.

This Company is backed by men of financial worth and standing, some of whom are known to almost every banker in the State of Pennsylvania. The directorate of this Company is made up of:—

James S. Kuhn, President
President of the Pittsburgh Bank for Savings; President of the First National Bank, McKeesport; a director of the Colonial Trust Company, Pittsburgh; of the Germania Savings Bank of Pittsburgh; First National Bank, Pittsburgh, and the Trust Company of America, New York.

W. S. Kuhn
President of the United Coal Company, President West Penn Railways Company, director First National Bank of Pittsburgh; First National Bank of McKeesport, Pittsburgh Bank for Savings, The Commonwealth Trust Company and the Commercial National Bank, Pittsburgh.

John W. Herron
President of the Commonwealth Trust Company, Vice-President of the Commercial National Bank of Pittsburgh, and executor with Andrew Carnegie of the Mary E. Schenley Estate, and formerly sole agent. (The Schenley Estate is estimated at between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000.)

Hugh Young

J. H. Purdy
President of the Birmingham Water Works Company, Birmingham, Ala., director Pittsburgh Bank for Savings, and the United Coal Company.

J. M. Plumer
A prominent Pittsburgh attorney and member of the Allegheny County Bar. He is counsel for a number of large corporations and financial institutions.

L. L. McClelland, Secretary and Treasurer
Was for eighteen years connected with the Commercial National Bank of Pittsburgh, latterly occupying the position of Assistant Cashier of that institution.

In this time of prosperity, many wild cat schemes are presented to separate the investor from his money and giving no return for his hard earned dollars. In seeking an investment, absolute security as to principal with a fair interest return, is what the conservative investor wants. It is a question of great importance with many people how they can make the income from their investments as large as possible within the limits of perfect safety. The people who depend upon their money at interest for living expenses are few, indeed, who could not conveniently use a little more than they are now receiving. These people can materially increase their incomes by studying the buying of bonds judiciously. One thing for a bond buyer to remember, is that in order to get the best possible prices on any securities offered in the market, he must deal with a bond house that makes a specialty of buying securities outright.

The Municipal & Corporation Securities Company owns everything that it offers that has been purchased for its own account, after the most searching examination as to the legality of the bond, and in the case of Corporation properties, the physical examinations are made by the best engineers; this is also true in the matter of legality on any issue that is purchased by the "Municipal," the best legal talent that can be purchased is always employed.

Knowing that we have readers who are interested from time to time in high-class investment bonds, we take pleasure in calling their attention to the securities that are handled by the Municipal & Corporation Securities Company, whose advertisement appears in this issue.

The Badge of Honesty

Is on every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of the ingredients, composing it, is printed there in plain English. Forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherry bark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post. You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

A MODERN OLD STORY

(Original.)

Eljah Chubb, who wrote over the pseudonym of Lionel Malcolm, had been writing realistic stories wherein nothing happened, the humdrum of life went on as it really is, people marrying and dying in the ordinary way, till he was wearied. He determined to try his hand at the old fashioned tale of complicated events. He realized that his story, though old in method, must be new in substance. Unfortunately he could not overcome literary habits that had controlled him for years. Here is the result of his labor:

An automobile, twenty horsepower and of the latest pattern, stood before the door of a stately mansion near the border line between New York and Pennsylvania. Within the house two people on the very threshold of life, a youth of eighteen in leather dress and a maiden of sixteen in princess, stood in a drawing room furnished in Louis Quatorze style. At the windows were curtains of rich renaissance lace. Over those hung heavy satin brocade. The girl was looking up timidly into the youth's face.

"Luella," he said, taking both her hands in his, "I have a confession to make."

"Make it," she replied, with a shudder.

"I am a married man."

She moaned a low, deep, melancholy moan.

"I was married at eighteen, divorced in South Dakota at eighteen and six months, and my former wife lives in Pennsylvania. A suit for alimony has established the fact that the Pennsylvania laws do not recognize the South Dakota divorce. I am free to wed you here. In Pennsylvania my marriage would be bigamy."

Her head fell on his shoulder. He raised her face and saw that she was weeping. Then she spoke:

"I, too, Lawrence, have a confession to make. I was married at fifteen and only secured my divorce a month ago, as in your case, in Dakota. My husband has contested the divorce in Pennsylvania, from which state we have but recently removed, and lost his suit. There I am free to marry again. But, alas, he has followed me here, and my lawyer tells me that the New York laws make me still his wife."

She had no sooner spoken than there was a sharp ring at the telephone. Going to the instrument, she took up the receiver and said softly:

"Hello!"

After listening a few moments she dropped the receiver, staggering, when her lover caught her in his arms.

"Heavens!" she cried. "It was my lawyer. He says that my divorced husband has got an order for me to show cause for something or other and I must get out of the jurisdiction of the court. What shall I do?"

"My automobile is at the door. Let us go at once."

As she passed through the hall she took up a dust proof wrap and put on a pair of goggles, as did her lover. Both jumped into the machine standing at the door and sped away at twice the speed allowed by the city ordinances.

"Dearest," he said, "why should loving hearts regard these conflicting laws? Let us be married and defy them."

Her head dropped upon his leather sleeve.

Passing the rectory of St. James' church, he saw the rector coming down the steps. Drawing up at the sidewalk, the fugitive hastily asked him to perform the marriage ceremony. Lawrence, turning his head anxiously, saw an automobile coming rapidly down the street. With a herculean effort he pulled the dominie into the machine and was off like the wind.

"We are followed by an officer of the court," he explained, "and cannot stop for marriage. Marry us as we go."

The dominie demurred to such an unusual proceeding, but after much persuasion consented and performed the ceremony. Scarcely had he pronounced the couple man and wife when Lawrence gave a groan.

"What is it dearest?" asked his wife—that is, if she was his wife.

"We are headed southward and have either passed or are passing or about to pass the Pennsylvania line."

"There my marriage is legal," she said quickly.

"And there I am a bigamist."

"What shall we do?"

"We cannot turn. We are followed too closely. The slightest curve would upset the machine. We must go on. Thank heaven, dearest, you will be free from these odious laws."

"And you will be liable to arrest?"

Far in the distance appeared a cloud of dust, a cloud as large as a man's hand, which the fugitives supposed was nothing to them but a coming automobile which they must pass by, keeping to the right as the law directs. Alas, how little we know what is in store for us! Just before meeting the coming machine Lawrence saw an opportunity to take a road to the left which curved and would enable him to go northward without upsetting. The automobile behind had gained perceptibly and was close at hand. Lawrence swerved to the left, which was the right of the coming machine. The two met going at a rate of a mile a minute, and the machine coming from the north plunged into the two wheels. All were killed.

The author sent this story out to the magazines with a note explaining that the complications rendered the death of all the characters inevitable.

ALL DRUGGISTS; 50c. AND $1.00.

Doing Our Shopping by Mail.

All the people of Adams county know all about the "catalogue houses" and other big trust establishments which advertise to do a mail order business. The theory upon which they proceed is to pick out a few articles of common consumption and sell them at wholesale prices perhaps, or even less.

If a popular copyrighted book is published they will buy them in large quantity, and put them on the market at their cost price, and this serves two purposes, it aids them in killing off the local dealers, by showing a great contrast between the mail order house and the local dealer. It also operates as an excellent advertising scheme.

Seeing these low prices upon articles which the people know about, they readily conclude that the company advertising these things so wonderfully low are selling everything on a correspondingly low basis. The next question is in quality of the goods. They advertise apparently the same article that your home retailer does, at a much lower price, and soon they make the non-expert believe that he had better buy all his goods of them. He proceeds to do so and actually pays more in the end than he would pay his local town dealer at regular prices.

These houses make much more on the goods which you do not understand than they lose on the goods that you do understand, and by this process retain your trade, tear down the town or local dealers, wonderfully decreasing the value of town and adjacent country property.

In fact you are doing the very thing yourself. You are saving a few cents on an article and reducing the price of your town property or country farm.

Suppose you would buy only the bargains—just the goods that you understand and know to be bargains. How long do you suppose these mail order houses would do business? Not very long. They rely upon the bait which they set and it works in a large number of cases to perfection. Barnum, the great showman, once said that the American people delighted in being humbugged, that his show was the greatest humbug on earth and that was the reason he got such large crowds.

The people are always on the outlook for bargains and that is all right. But because someone advertises one article at less than you know it is worth, that is no inference that he sells other articles for less than they are worth. In fact the opposite inference is true, namely, if he sells one thing for less than it is worth, he must sell the next thing for that much more than it is worth to make up the loss on the first article, otherwise he would soon go bankrupt and out of business.

When we deal with these mail order houses and great trust concerns, we are centralizing trade at the expense of our town and country homes. How would we like it if there were no towns except where the mail order houses do business? How would it effect the value of our property? All of us like to live near thriving towns and yet in many cases the people adjoining the ones whose financial standing depends upon the existence of the town, and whose land values are nearly twice as great because of its nearness to town, are sending to these mail order houses for goods that are kept right here in Gettysburg and what is worse you may be getting not only the inferior article but also doing the damage to the local dealer who is usually one of the principal factors in keeping up the town.

There is no logic in the situation. Your local dealers can furnish you your articles for one year as cheap or cheaper than you get them from Mail Order Houses, besides if you happen to get something you can't use, you can easily adjust it with your local dealer.

We insist that the quality of the goods bought at home is invariably better than those bought from the mail order houses in the great cities. We are opposed to Trusts, then why help to build them up? That is just what we are doing by sending to these big Mail Order Houses for our goods. As long as we give the Trusts our financial or moral support we are creating masters for ourselves. Are we so mercenary, that for the purpose of saving a few cents, we are willing to hazard the future of our children.

Lets have the patriotism and the stamina to say that the interest of our town and country home shall first be protected, and when we have done whole duty by our local interests we will find that we are worth more in dollars and cents than we are in sending to the great city trust concerns for our supplies, and we will have retarded the progress of the trusts just that much. S. S. W. Hammers.

A Unique Entertainment.

The male members of the Lutheran congregation at Philipsburg, Pa., headed by the pastor, Rev. H. W. Bender, gave a novel and very pleasant entertainment one evening last week. They sent out invitations and filled the large audience room. The exercises were singing by a skilled quartet, an amusing address and a spelling bee, choice after choice being made by the leaders until the long aisle was filled with two rows of contestants, resulting in much merriment. After this came the banquet at which the men did all the work, one young man baked a cake which made 200 pieces for serving and all the necessary cooking was done by the men as well as the serving, the ladies and their friends did not have a blessed thing to do but go, enjoy themselves and go home. The entertainment from beginning to end was declared to have been a most enjoyable one. Rev. Bender went to the Philipsburg charge from New Chester.

The Contrast.

A small negro boy was putting his head against the marble steps of the capitol. He would step back a few feet and then run toward the steps, striking them full force with his head. "What on earth are you doing that for, boy?" asked a senator who came by. "Are you going to fight a goat?" "Now, sah, I's doin' it cause it feels so good when I don't."—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The First Bull.

Charon, the boatman of the Styx, was thought by many to be of Irish blood, for invariably as he was casting off from the hither shore he would call out to his cargo of souls: "Now, then, look alive!" This was doubtless as near an approach to an Irish bull as the then state of civilization permitted.—Puck.

He is not sure which is Democratic and which is Republican. He killed two of them at the pump bed of Norris Howe. One of them five feet, six and one-half inches, the other two inches less. These he dispatched with a shovel. A third was sunning himself on top of a straw stack, and was killed. This one was five feet one inch. Later same day he sent us a postal saying he had killed fourth snake, three feet four inches long. Mr. Weikert also exhibited a very ancient Spanish silver coin which he found, worn thin with age, so old that it is difficult to decipher the date, but it appears to be 1311.

A KILOWATT HOUR

THE electrical engineers of the lighting plant of Loughborough, England, has recently published a little list showing the inhabitants what a kilowatt hour of electricity will do for them. Our readers can develop such an idea or table for themselves. Some of the performances are a little vague, but the list as a whole is quite striking and ingenious:

Saw 300 feet of timber (deal).
Clean 5000 knives.
Keep your feet warm for five hours.
Clean 75 pairs of boots.
Clip 2 horses.
Warm your curling tongs every day in the year for 3 minutes and twice on Sundays.
Warm your shaving water every morning for a month.
Give you 1550 impressions on a Bremner royal printing machine.
Run a mechanical sieve for 2 hours.
Run an electric clock for 10 years.
Iron 30 silk hats.
Light 8000 cigars.
Knead 8 sacks of flour into dough.
Fill and cork 250 dozen pint bottles.
Supply all the air required by an ordinary church organ for one service.
Pump 100 gallons of water, or other liquid, to a height of 25 feet.
Run a plate-polishing machine for 21 hours.
Run an electric piano for 10 hours.
Lift 3 1-2 tons 75 feet in 4 minutes.

Give you 3 Turkish light baths.
Keep four domestic irons in use for an hour.
Keep you warm in bed for 32 hours.
Warm all the beds in the house, by a warming pan, for a fortnight.
Give you a fire in your bedroom for an hour while you are dressing or undressing.
Boil 9 kettles, each holding 2 pints of water.
Cook 15 chops in 15 minutes.
Run a small ventilating fan for 21 hours.
Run a large ventilating fan for 6 hours.
Keep your breakfast warm for 5 hours.
Run a sewing machine for 21 hours.
Carry your dinner upstairs every day for a week.
Carry you 30 times from the bottom of the house to the top, 80 feet each journey.
Keep your coffee pot warm at the breakfast table every day for a week.
Carry you 3 miles in an electric brougham.—Electric World.

Interesting Statement by The People's Drug Store.

When a man comes into this store and calls for any particular indigestion remedy, we always give him what he asks for, but in case he leaves it to us we usually recommend Peppikola tablets.

Here is a preparation we have been selling right over the counter for years, and from actual observation we know it must do good, and really does cure indigestion and dyspepsia or there would be a steady stream of people coming back for their money, as every 25 cent box is sold with the understanding that you must be decidedly benefited or there is nothing to pay.

You simply try Peppikola tablets with the understanding that they will steady your nerves, improve your appetite, relieve wind belching, coated tongue, sour stomach, fullness, after eating, weakened energy, and other symptoms of indigestion or The People's Drug Store are ready at any time to pay back your money without the least argument.

FARMERS are asking if Uncle Sam makes use of country roads in the delivery of mail, why should not Uncle Sam held at the road making.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THOMAS A. FISHER of Arendtsville, discovered a fire in his kitchen pantry in time to put it out before much damage was done.

REST is the great restorer. We tire our muscles by exercise and then rest to restore them; yet a great many of us do not stop to think how little rest we give to our stomachs. As a usual thing no part of our bodies is so generally over-worked as our digestive organs. A tired and overworked stomach will give signs of distress to which we pay no heed until at last Dyspepsia takes hold. Indigestion is just a warning, and if we heed the warning we can easily avoid further consequences. Kodol is a most thorough stomach relief. It digests what you eat and gives the stomach the needed rest and greatly assists in restoring it to its normal activity and usefulness. Kodol is sold on a guarantee relief plan. It is sold here by People's Drug Store.

DR. DALZELL moved into the new Presbyterian parsonage at Fairfield last week.

"Pneumonia's Deadly Work" had so seriously affected my right lung," writes Mrs. Fannie (donor of Rural Route 1, Georgetown, Tenn., "that I coughed continuously night and day and the neighbors' prediction, consumption, seemed inevitable, until my husband brought home a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, which in my case proved to be the only real cough cure and restorer of weak, sore lungs." When all other remedies utterly fail, you may still win in the battle against lung and throat troubles with New Discovery, the real cure. Guaranteed by People's Drug Store, 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. Not with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional. But both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a typical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments. The "night cure" as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, causes nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—see general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well the "night cure."

Promises to the Dying.

A clergyman, discussing unhappy love affairs, said: "Many a love tragedy is caused by a husband's promise to a dying wife that he will not marry again. He thinks when he makes this promise that it will be easy to keep. Whether it is easy or hard to keep, it is a promise rarely if ever broken. Time and time again widowers have sought me out for advice on this subject. They are in love, but they promised their dead wives not to marry again. Shall they break or keep this promise? I can only advise them to do as their conscience dictates. At the same time I think it is selfish of dying wives to extract such promises from their broken hearted husbands. Such promises, by the way, are rarely extracted by dying husbands from broken hearted wives. But, then, when the dead husband's will is read it is usually found that if the widow marries again the money is all taken from her. So it comes to the same thing in the end, doesn't it?"—New York Press.

Famous Collection of Antlers.

Of the famous collections of antlers formed in the seventeenth century only two or three have escaped the general fate of conflagrations, sieges and pillage. One of these is in Moritzburg, the king of Saxony's historical hunting castle, near Dresden, while in the celebrated gun gallery in Dresden itself are to be seen in an unrivaled show the wonderfully inland arms used by the elector. The great banquet hall of the castle of Moritzburg is one of the sights with which no doubt many a traveled reader has been charmed. It is a chamber of noble proportions, sixty-six feet long by thirty-four wide and thirty-eight feet high. On its otherwise unadorned white walls hang seventy-one pairs of magnificent antlers, which one may describe as the most famous of their kind in the world. Not a single one carries less than twenty-four times or is less than 200 years old, while some are probably double that age.

A Celebrated Clock.

The art of the clockmaker has achieved many remarkable triumphs during many centuries. Sometimes it is a clock wonderful for the complexity of its movements and its busy population of automatons that attracts our admiration, like that in the Cathedral of Strassburg. At other times the immense size of the machinery and the dials excites astonishment. This is the case with the celebrated clock in the tower of the Church of St. Rombaut at Mechlin. A writer in La Nature thinks this clock possesses the largest dials that exist in the world. There are four of them, one on each side of the great square tower, and their extreme diameter is nearly thirty-seven and one-half feet. The figures showing the hours are nearly six and one-half feet high, and the hands have a length of nearly twelve feet.

Who Gets Your Vote?

"Do you see that man there?" remarked a barber to a customer in his chair. "Well, he has had one and the same job for the past forty-seven years and has been married all that time, and his wife has never at any time during that period known what salary her husband was getting. The wife gets so much a week and no more and has never been able to learn what amount of money her husband has been receiving in exchange for his labor. Now, what bothers me is which should have the diamond medal—I say diamond, as in this case the finest would seem to be needed—the man for being able to so long baffle a woman's curiosity or the woman for surviving so long an unsatisfied curiosity."—Columbus Dispatch.

A Fearful Duel.

The most terrible duel fought at any time in Paris was the one between Colonel D., an old Bonapartist officer, and M. de G., of the Gardes du Corps, a mere youth, but of herculean strength. The two men, lashed together so as to leave their right arms free, were armed with short knives, placed in a hackney coach and driven at a tearing gallop around the Place de la Concorde. They were taken out of the coach dead. The colonel had eighteen stabs, the youth only four, but one of these had pierced his heart.

Mastered the Q.

Hundreds of people have cured themselves of impediments in speech. One of last year's mayors as a young man used to find it almost impossible to pronounce words beginning with a "q." Every day for months he used to walk across St. James' park practicing this sentence aloud, "A quantity of quicksilver quietly quattered in a quagmire," until he conquered the impediment. Today he is one of the most fluent speakers in England.—London Tit-Bits.

Why He Wanted an Autograph.

A young man once wrote to William Dean Howells for his autograph. The novelist replied in a typewritten line. "Have you bought my last book?" The young man answered: "I have not. I want to sell your autograph in order to get money enough to buy it."

Reasonable Request.

"The trouble," said the dentist as he probed away at the aching molar with a long, slender instrument, "is evidently due to a dying nerve." "Well," groaned the victim, "it's open to you to treat the dying with a little more respect."

THE NEWS—No Pure Drug Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. A DAM BUILT ON END.

How a Clever Engineer Conquered a Mechanical Difficulty.

Almost every boy has built dozens of dams in various ways, constructing them across the bed of the channel, wide or narrow, to be dammed. But did any boy ever think of building a dam on end and then tipping it over?
An inventive American engineer, Isham Randolph, who became famous by his work on the Chicago drainage canal, has tried this idea on the Niagara river 200 yards above the Horseshoe fall and made a remarkable success of it.

Of course an ordinary dam could not easily be built in the fiercely racing currents of Niagara hurrying to plunge over the fall. So Mr. Randolph decided to build his dam on end on the very edge of the river. It was not meant to do more than raise the water level a few inches, so as to prevent water scarcity in winter for the Canadian town of Niagara Falls when the ice jam comes on. A dam seven feet or so high was enough and fifty feet long.
Turned on end, this meant a column fifty feet high and seven feet four inches square. The clever engineer used concrete as the cheapest, easiest and least corrosive material. But any column of any material was certain to break in the shock of falling. How was that to be provided for?

Easily enough, the inventive builder argued. Up the middle of the concrete column, like a huge backbone, he ran a strong iron chain weighing about 800 pounds. The whole column weighed some 200 tons. At intervals eight feet apart all the way up it along the landward face wooden wedges were inserted, so that in breaking it would follow these lines and break into regular blocks, held together by the chain. The plan was audacious, but entirely practical—a true "Yankee notion." On Nov.
9, 1905, the finished dam was sent flying over by three hydraulic jacks.
Amid the breathless interest of a large crowd of spectators the concrete column fell, splashed and settled. When splash and spray subsided there it stretched, broken at the destined points, tilted a trifle irregularly in the middle, where the river bed was higher, but quite effectual. The depth of water increased ten inches at once.
The "obelisk dam" was a success.—

WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS.

A bride who finds a spider on her wedding dress may consider herself blessed.

The bride who dreams of fairies the night before her marriage will be thrice blessed.

If the bridegroom carries a miniature horseshoe in his pocket he will always have good luck.

No bride or bridegroom should be given a telegram on the way to church.
It is positively a sign of evil.

If the wedding ring is dropped during the ceremony the bride may as well wish herself unborn, for she will always have ill luck.

Kiss a bride right after the ceremony and before the newly made husband has a chance to do so, and you will have excellent luck throughout the year.

Should a bride perchance see a coffin while being driven to the railway station prior to departure upon her wedding tour she should order the driver to turn back and start over again, or else she will surely meet with bad luck.

New York's First State Prison.

The first state prison in New York state was built at the foot of West Tenth street, in New York city, in 1797. Within seven years there were three mutinies of prisoners, in which keepers were killed and the prison set on fire. Nevertheless the institution seems to have been considered an attraction, as appears from the following advertisement of the Greenwich hotel, printed in the Columbian of Sept. 18, 1811:

A few gentlemen may be accommodated with board and lodging at this pleasant and healthy situation, a few doors from the state prison. The Greenwich stage passes from this to the federal hall and returns five times a day.

The prisoners were transferred to Sing Sing in 1828, and the property was sold the next year.—New York

The Law's Delays.

A lawyer on being asked why his profession is always in court asking for delays and adjournments responded: "I have observed in my long years of experience that when a lawyer has a very good case he is anxious to try it. If he has a poor one the longer he can delay it the better it suits him.
There is no telling what the accidents and incidents of time may supply in his favor. Another reason perhaps the lawyer continues, is the fact that a lawyer never feels like going to a self entirely away from a case until he has lost it. I conclude that this is one of the mysteries of the legal mind."—Kansas

A Judge of Eggs.

Judge Addison, a well known jurist of London, was in the habit of making in the oddest observations when trying cases. On one occasion questioning lawyers were wrangling over the question, "When does an egg become stale?" The judge, who had vivid reollections of a close election contest in which he figured, declared that the real test of an egg's staleness was the moment it became fit for use at a contested election.

The Last Comrade

(Original.)

An old man sat at a table on which had been placed a smoking dinner and plates for eighteen persons. No seat was occupied except that of the old man himself, and as the clock on the mantel ticked away the minutes no one else appeared. Indeed, the one occupant of the room could not have expected any one else, for his own dinner was on his plate. At each place was a bottle of wine, but the only bottle uncorked was that before the one diner.

At the close of the Mexican war eighteen officers who had taken part in it and who lived not far from one another decided to celebrate the peace with a dinner. It was a jubilee. During the evening a proposition was made and decided upon that once a year the feast was to be repeated, and as each man dropped on his plate and bottle were to be set the same as if he were present.

All were either young or comparatively young, and it was some years before a single place was vacant. Then a chill passed over every man as he entered the room and saw the empty chair, the plate, the uncorked bottle, of their late comrade. All had looked upon battlefields, but none had experienced this same peculiar sensation in viewing the dead and dying.

Several years passed. The seventeen men were beginning to become somewhat accustomed to the one vacant chair when the clock of their lives struck 2. They missed one of the youngest, merriest of their number.
Then it became apparent that the spontaneous merriment of their first dinner would wane under the increasing vacant chairs and exertion must be made to keep the dinners from growing painful. A resolution was passed that each man must contribute something—a song, a story, a joke, whatever he pleased—to enliven the occasion.

Slowly the diners watched the increasing vacancies till the number gone equaled the number remaining. When the nine living men met and drank to the nine who were dead, it was with an effort. Some one proposed that they should sit together at a living half of the table, leaving the other half for the dead, but the proposal was voted down, and the living and the dead remained side by side.

Their clock struck 10, 11, 12, and two-thirds of the original number had passed away. Six men whose beards were gray sat together and drank to twelve who had gone. To them the dead remained at the age they departed, some on the threshold of manhood, others at successive ages.

It was years before there was another vacancy; then two empty plates dropped into line like figured disks recording the revolutions of an engine shaft. Another dropped in three years, and another in two.

By this time all who were destined to reach the ordinary limit, threescore years and ten, had dropped out. Of those who were to become octogenarians or centenarians but two remained. For eleven years two old men sat down together once a year and drank to sixteen comrades whose bottles were uncorked. It was not now a question of which should be blessed with the longest life, but which would be soon-est relieved from a painful duty. As they glanced over the uncorked bottles it seemed that their dead comrades were drawn up in line to receive them when they should appear upon the eternal parade. With trembling hands they raised thin glasses to their lips and drank—drank as much as there was hope of assimilating with their worn-out systems—then set their glasses down and without a word left a room which from a banquet hall had become a sepulcher.

And now the last man, eighty-nine years old, sits alone. A myriad of wrinkles radiate from a scar on his forehead, the remains of a wound received at Churubusco. A few snow white hairs are scattered over his head. His eye is a flare of intelligence about to go out. His dinner is untast-ed, except a little toast water, of which he has taken a few sips. He sits at one end of the table and looks down the long line of bottles on either side, every bottle representing a dead comrade. He raises his glass and speaks, not with his lips—lips are not needed to address the dead—but in spirit.

"Comrades, I about to die, greet you. It has pleased our great commander to place me in charge of the rear guard. I have seen you all safely over the river, and now, my work being finished, I am permitted to cross myself. The din of battle sounds far from a confused hurly-burly of shouting of merriment, of content. I have no desire to return to mingle with it.
I only wish to join you in your long rest. Comrades, I greet you."

He touched the rim of his glass to the thin lips and set it down. Then he rested his chin on his breast and closed his eyes.

The door opened, and a group of children burst into the room, followed by their parents.

"Grandpa, wake up! We have come to cheer you for the loss of your friends. They are gone, but we are coming on. We know it would be sad for you to dine alone, and we are going to take you away and warm you with our young hearts beating against yours. Come, grandpa, wake up!"

But the old man did not wake up.
One of his sons, a man of fifty, approached and quietly shook him. Touching the veteran's hand, he found it cold. Quickly passing his own hand over the wrinkled brow, he dropped it on the heart.

It had ceased to beat

LADYLIKE GEOMETRY.

Figures of the same shape don't always have the same style.

Figures of the same size never consider themselves equivalent.

A straight line is the shortest distance between two millinery openings.

A plain figure is one all points of which have been neglected by the dressmaker.

A mixed line is a line composing the reception committee of a club's presidential candidate.

A broken line is a series of successive straight lines described by a woman alighting from a street car.

A straight line determined by two bargain tables is considered as prolonged both ways until the store closes.

A Pointed Prayer.

Aunt Dinah had come to see her old mistress, who had just recovered from an illness.

"Yes, Miss Lila, I sho'ly done prayed fer yer to get well all de time, and now yer see how it done turned out."

"Then you believe that your prayers are always answered, Dinah?"

"Sho'ly, sho'ly!" Then, with a sly glance: "Yer see, I neber tempts de Lord, 'case I don't pray fer nothin' dat I don't know I'll git. Dr. John, he done tol' me he tort yer was on de recovery road." After a pause she went on:

"Say, Miss Lila, yer know what I prayed fer last night?"

"No."

me dat brown silk dress yer done out-grewed."—Brooklyn Eagle.

In the Matter of Tips.

The man who tips the highest gets the best service and the most ostentatious deference. "Give this to the cook," said a St. Louis parvenu, handing a dollar to the waiter with his order, "and tell him to cook it my way." "Give this to the cook," said a scribe at the next table, handing a two dollar bill to the waiter with his order, "and tell him to cook it his own way, for he is a better cook than I am." We will not be out-shone. We will not shrink in any man's shadow. At the same time the pace is too hot and fast for most of us.—St.
Louis Globe-Democrat.

Leached Him.

A stranger wishing to play golf at North Berwick saw some one in authority up to the matter.

"What name?" asked the dimwitted official in charge.

"The Newfella," the stranger replied.

"Mon," said the official in a tone of disgust, "we canna fash outside wi' names like that at North Berwick.
Ye'll start in the morn at ten fifteen to the name of Fairgusson."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Miss Weston—And have you played much golf, Mr. Jones? Mr. Jones—Well, no; can't say I've played much, but I've walked round the links several times in golf clothes, and I'm beginning to understand the language.—Il-

MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

The Change From the Era When Wives Were Taken by Force.

Marriage customs have changed everywhere with the advance of civilization. Anglo Saxons in ancient times, it is said, used to capture their wives by force from their fathers or their husbands, it did not matter which.

This was before Augustine came to preach Christianity. Then purchase was more common than capture, although the latter seems to have been frequent enough to the reign of Ethelbert to need regulation by law. By this law a man might run away with a woman, provided he afterward paid her previous owner, be he father or husband, 50 shillings. If it was husband who had thus been deprived of his wife, the woman's captor had not only to pay him the fine, but also to buy him another wife. In any case the stolen woman belonged to her captor.

If a man had purchased his bride in the days of Ethelbert and afterward concluded he had paid too much for her, it was lawful for him to return her to her former owner and claim again the purchase price, provided that he had not previously expressed satisfaction by making the bride a present on the morning after the wedding.

The next step was the "foster lien," when the bride price was paid on the day of espousal and was supposed to compensate the parent for the cost of bringing up his daughter. It seems, however, that this soon fell into disrepute, as there was no law against the father engaging his daughter to numerous suitors, taking from each the "foster lien" and, of course, cheating all but one on the wedding day, which at that time was only the day of bethothal, when the suitor gave a "wed" or pledge for the future performance of his contract. If the suitor did not claim his bride within two years after the wedding day, he forfeited all right to her and to whatever money or goods he had paid for her. If the woman and her father broke their promises, the father had to give the suitor four times as much as "the suitor" had already paid him.

As civilization advanced the bride price was given to the woman herself and became her dowry, while nowadays the tables are frequently turned,
and the bride settles the money on her husband.
